

A Beyond Boundaries Event

Generous Thinking and the Future of the University

Dr. Kathleen Fitzpatrick

Director of Digital Humanities
Professor of English
Michigan State University

Universities have played a critical and central role in the progress of the nation and the world, yet the mission of the university is under scrutiny and the relationship of universities to the public is under stress. What is the future of higher education? What role do scholars play in determining that future? How might we improve the work we do, and better share and evaluate the work of the university? Fitzpatrick challenges higher education to be more generous and collaborative, and explores the implications for how we engage internally and with our communities and partners.

SAVE THE DATES:

October 8th, Roanoke, VTCMOS 11:15

Generous Thinking and Inclusion and Diversity

October 9th, Blacksburg, Smithfield, Inn at Virginia Tech 11:00

Generous Thinking and the Future of Tenure, a round table discussion

October 9th, Blacksburg, Assembly Hall, the Alumni Center 3:30

Generous Thinking and the Future of the University

October 10th, Arlington, EWFC, Virginia Tech Research Center 1:30

Generous Thinking and External Partnerships

Sponsoring units: The Office of the Provost, Center for Humanities, Institute for Society Culture and Environment, Policy Destination Area, VT Carilion School of Medicine, University Libraries